

About Me

About Me

First and foremost a Seventh-day Adventist Christian, my life choices are based on such a worldview. God comes first in my life, followed by being of service to others. My passion for serving God, humanity, and being a good steward of the environment are evident in my recent PhD water management research and my current job in international development with ADRA Laos.

Residence & Family

I currently reside in Vientiane, Laos, after several years in Sydney. I have lived in about 20 different places due to my father's occupation as a church pastor. I have shifted almost every year of my life. I was born in Melbourne in 1978, and have lived in Victoria, Queensland, Western Australia, New South Wales, the Philippines, Papua New Guinea, Madagascar and now Laos. My parents and brother, Paul, are currently living on the central coast of NSW. About Site

This site contains information, news, photos and links of interest and relevance to me, my friends and colleagues.

Any credit for any achievement or success in my life is due to God who gives me strength and blessing according to His will and plan for my life. Mission Statement

My mission statement is to grow in knowing, loving and serving God, through service to the needs of my fellow humans. My objectives are to do this in the areas of church life, my friendships, and my vocational life - i.e. provision and improvement of water and sanitation.
